

We're delighted to announce the launch of our new website

So what's on the new website?

We've refreshed the content and tied it all in with our social media activity. We have, an update of our proprietary portfolio, which includes our first franchise in diabetes and our next franchise in anti-infectives, as well as the collaborative work we do with our partners. Our news section will keep you informed on what we're up to.

The design of the site is focused on user experience across the full range of devices.

We value your opinion

We know how busy you all are but if you have a minute, have a browse and see what you think. We'd welcome any feedback and thoughts to info@arecor.com.

Please also let us know if you cannot find something or would like to make any suggestions for new information or topics.

Many thanks for your ongoing support and we look forward to hearing from you!

A word of thanks

This website would not have been completed without the dedication and talents of Carr Kamasa Design. Thank you CKD.
